

The microscope

Cells are too small to see with the naked eye, so a microscope is used to study them. There are many different kinds of light microscope but they all work in the same way.

Light is directed through the specimen into the microscope lenses. These lenses magnify the specimen, so that the image appears much larger than the specimen's actual size.

Label the parts of the microscope in the diagram below:

